

We found an old pine table made by a furniture hobbyist in Leicester. He had it quite a while and it was showing its age – cracking along the seams and frayed along the edges. We sanded it down to the bare wood and smoothed out the rough spots. Then we added some unique cast iron legs from the early 1900's that we salvaged from a school desk. Makes a nice dining or entry table.

Roughly 70 inches long, 29 inches wide, 30 inches tall.
