

I find leftover building material all over the county. A contractor in Asheville had some nice wooden doors left over from a renovation project. They were stained a really dark color and had faded some. I cut one door roughly in half, painted it white, and added some teal for that distressed look. Then I made some X-shaped legs - the result is a nice entry table or sofa table.

46 inches long (top), 36 inches long (bottom), 18 inches wide and about 35 inches high.
