

I find different kinds of useful furniture everywhere. Here I found an old wine rack at a thrift shop. It was bent, twisted, and rusted. I straightened it out, sanded off the rust, spray painted it shiny black, and replaced the cracked pressboard with some chestnut and poplar I got off a barn in Asheville. The result is a beautiful all-purpose wine rack that would fit in with any décor. It works just as well sitting on your floor or on your counter. Rack hold up to 10 wine bottles.

About 26" tall, 24" wide and 18" deep.
